CHANGE AND GROWTH

. . . have characterized the pattern of life at Oglethorpe this year. Welcoming a new president was the first big step.

Yet there are some things that do not change . . .

CHANGES ARE EVIDENT

in campus improvements and repairs. Expansion and a building program are parts of a definite future. Equally important is the change in the name of the school. Henceforth the school will be known as Oglethorpe College, a name more in keeping with the nature and purpose of the Oglethorpe ideal. Change has come rapidly this year, but much that is essential to life and study at Oglethorpe remains and forms the building stone for future progress. Many of the routine aspects of life at Oglethorpe go unchanged, too . . .

The companionship of Great Hall, friendly and earnest discussion over a cup of coffee, concentration on a laboratory assignment, these things stay a part of the memory and life of Oglethorpe.

THE ACADEMIC SPIRIT CONTINUES . . .

This is the way Oglethorpe students live and play and study. Faces will change, the school will progress and grow, but every Oglethorpe student will retain his own special memory of the time he spent here and more will come to make their own memories about life and study at Oglethorpe.

It is this record of student life and the beauty of our campus, caught in the midst of transition, yet continuing on in much the same way as ever in taken-for-granted things that we often overlook and fail to appreciate, that the 1965 YAMA-CRAW has sought to capture.

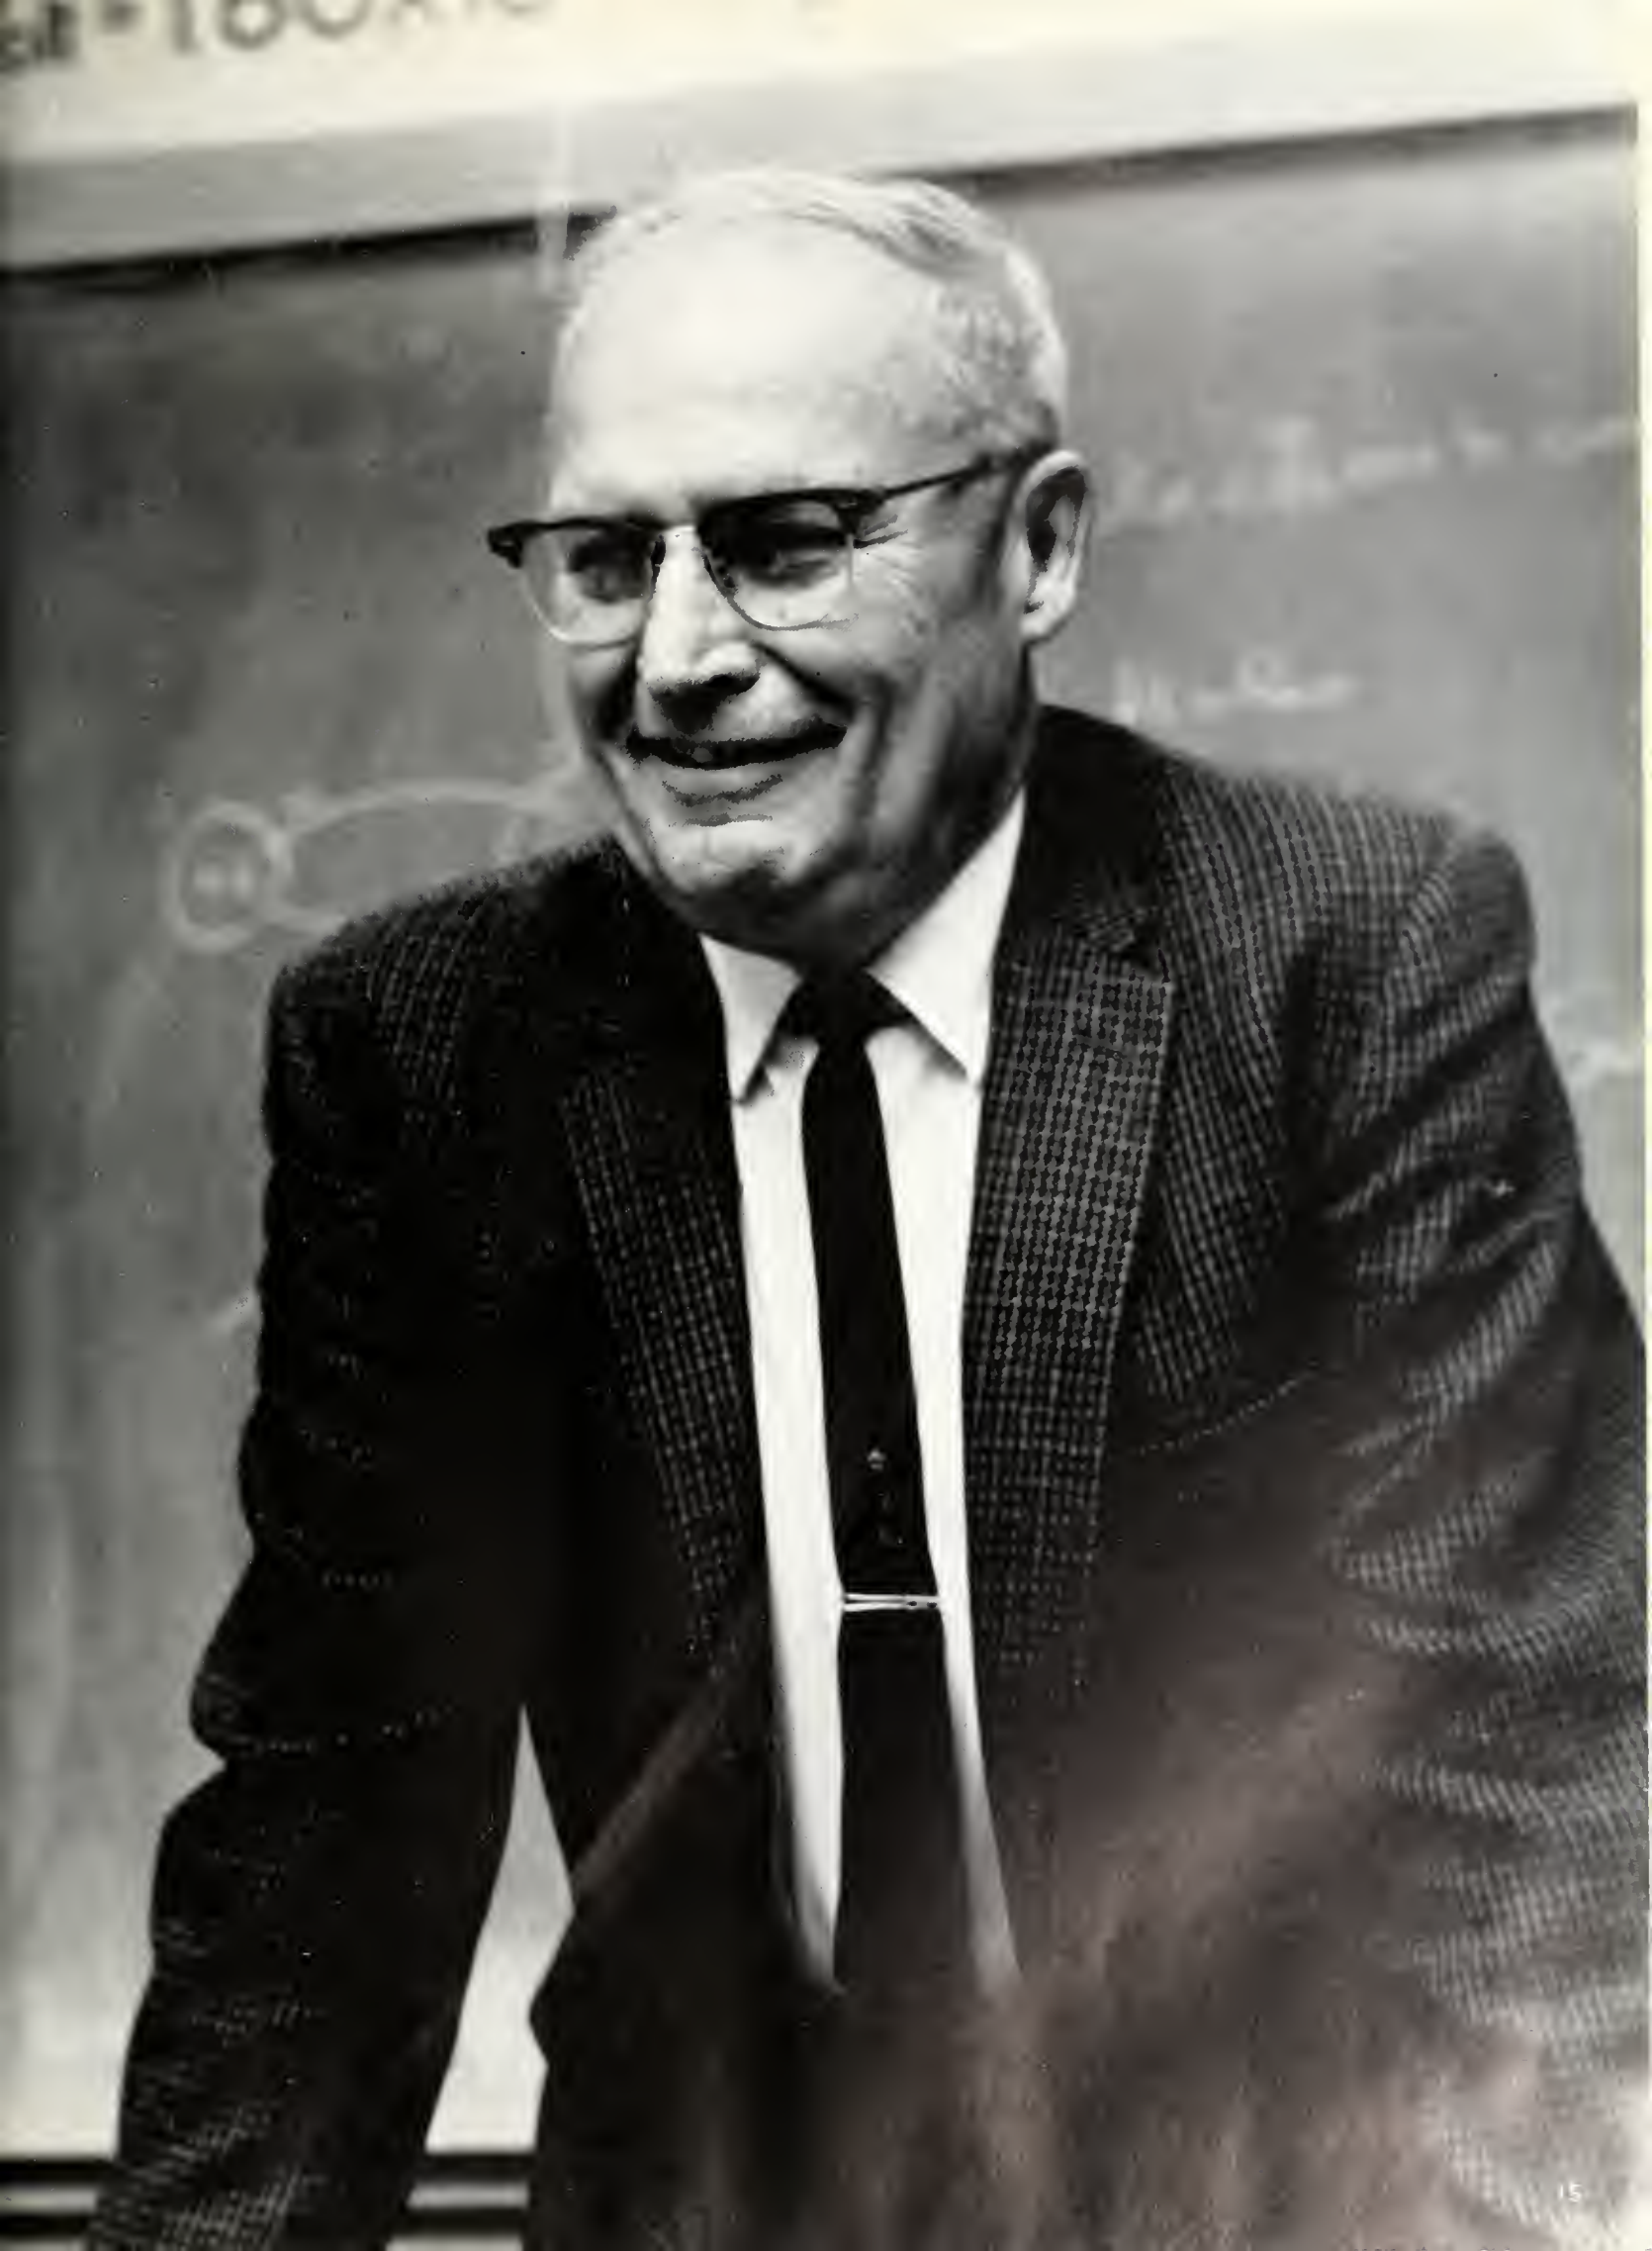

We, the staff of the 1965 YAMACRAW and the students of Oglethorpe, wish to dedicate this record of student life and of our school to someone who is a vital part of that life and that school. His willingness and ability to listen, understand, encourage, and help have inspired our confidence both in him and ourselves. He has helped us to grow academically and in self-understanding.

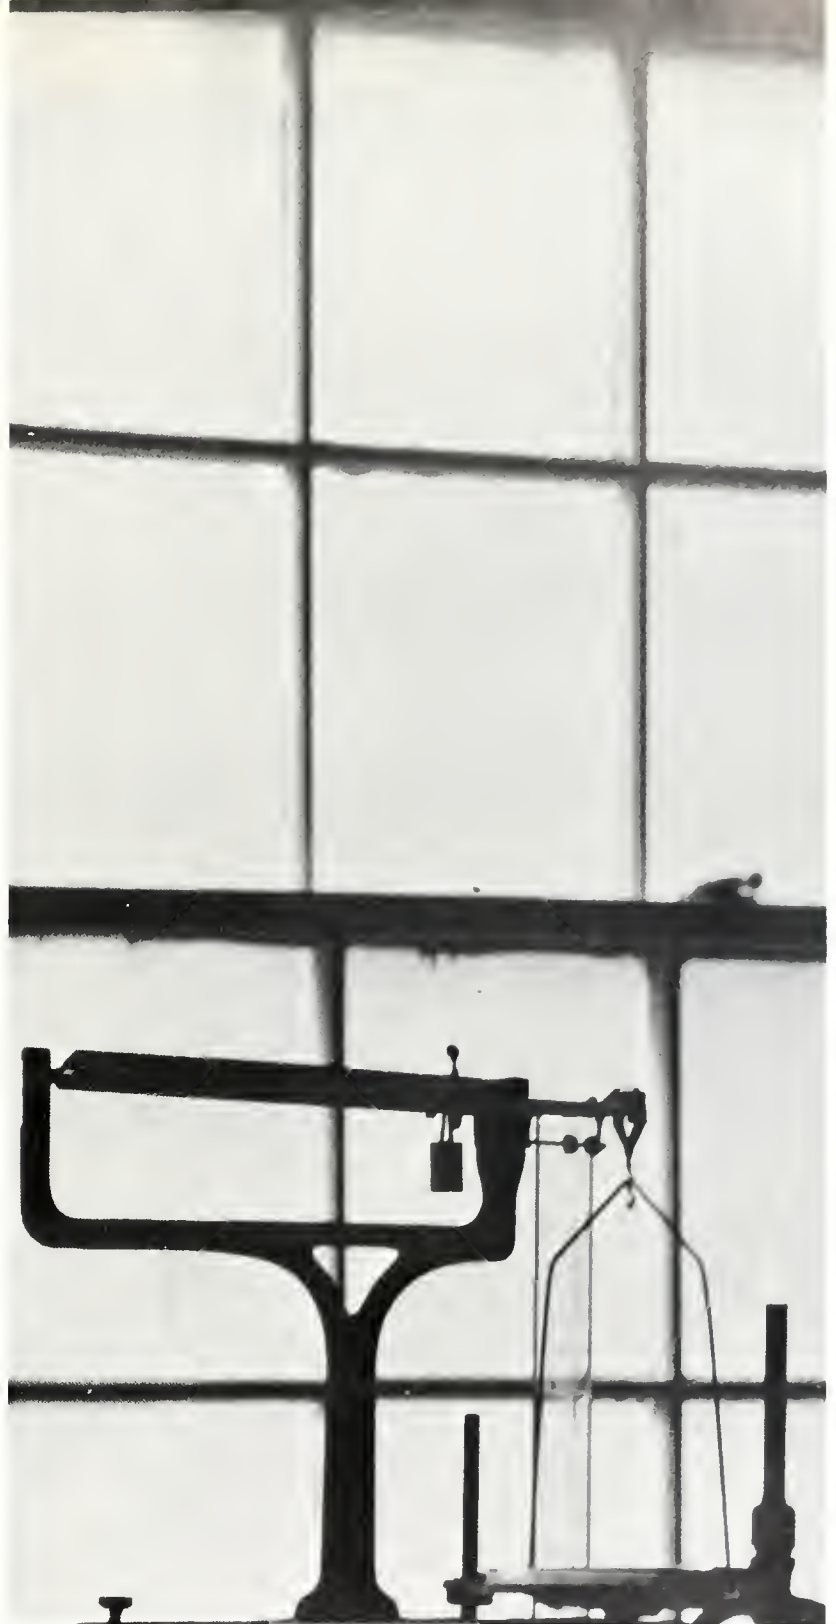

Because one of the avowed purposes of a small school is to close the distance between students and faculty and he has done so much to bridge that gap, we dedicate this book to

FACULTY

Looking Forward to a Progressive Tomorrow, Oglethorpe Inaugurates a New President . . .

DR. PAUL R. BEALL

June 1965

Greetings to all Oglethorpians!

This is my first year with you, and since I am writing this greeting in February (for all that the page is dated June), my first and strongest feeling is to thank all of you again for the cordial welcome you have given me. I find that every prospect pleases. I like the cut of our students, the skill of our faculty, the dedication of our trustees, and the opportunity that is Atlanta in 1965.

I know a high school sophomore, a person very dear to me, who told me the other day that one of her high school teachers had said, "Understand that you do not come to high school for an education, but only to prepare so that you can get into college. There you will receive your education."

Contrary to this, we think that education begins on Day One and continues, for those who truly live, to Day Last.

What is the point of all of this? I speak of the importance of NOW.

Boss Kettering said wisely, "We are interested in the future because that is where we will spend the rest of our lives." Note, though, that the only reality of "future" is that instant we call NOW. To quote from ancient Sanskrit,

"For yesterday is but a Dream
And tomorrow only a Vision.
But today well lived makes
Every yesterday a Dream of Happiness,
And every tomorrow a Vision of Hope.
Look well therefore to this Day!"

I think we live in a great day—a day of good living and a day of wholesome growing for Oglethorpe College. It is a pleasure to be with you.

Sincerely,
PAUL R. BEALL

The Division of Citizenship seeks to develop among all students of Oglethorpe an awareness in breadth and in depth of the political, social, cultural, and economic forces that have shaped the past and the present and will influence the future. To this end, the department pivots around a common core program which extends over a four year period. This program concentrates on providing students with a broad background in the specific areas of world history, principles and practices of economics and government, and culminates with a course in international relations that integrates the three fields already mentioned into a meaningful synthesis. The department feels that it is only through an intelligent awareness of these factors that a person can fully understand the manner in which modern-day America relates to the world community and thus understand the privileges and responsibilities of citizens not only of the United States but of the world community.

The Division of Community Service offers a broad curriculum to those who are planning to spend their future working with people. This program is aimed at enhancing the depth, breadth, and precision of our knowledge about human conduct. Through an extensive survey of the Lynwood section of DeKalb County directed by Dr. Richard M. Reser, head of the division, during the year, many problems were explored and discussed and solutions were suggested to the county officials. Through projects such as this, through student teaching, through an active intercollegiate sports schedule, and through the training of public servants in the humanities, the division of community service promotes Oglethorpe's future—not only as an institution of higher learning, but as a public servant to the surrounding community.

The Division of Human Understanding, headed by Wendell H. Brown, has as its major theme the development and advancement of man's essential humanness.

Through an extensive study of the nature of the western world, the student observes change and pattern in history. By examining the past, he learns of man's nature, and equipped with this knowledge, he is able to live a good life as well as earn a good living.

Language, art, music, and philosophy all combine to give the student an overall understanding of the advancement of man and his society.

The Division of Science seeks to train the student in such a manner that he is able to recognize and explore the interaction between science and human affairs. Although the sciences are divided into a great number of specialties, there is a fundamental background to all. At Oglethorpe science courses are designed to provide this needed background in preparation for future study. Through the stimulation of scientific inquiry, members of the science division encourage the student to search for development of new products and discoveries in a world which is putting more and more emphasis on scientific advancement.

Swing Into Their Last Year

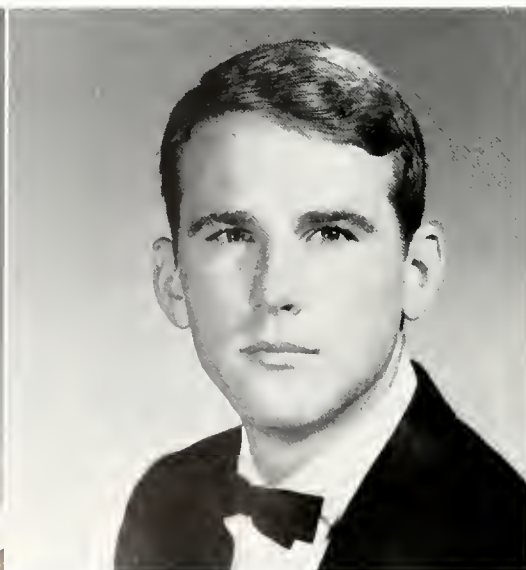

Senior Poem — 1965

A beginning—the Fall, when mornings are chilly
And afternoons bright. The brisk season of our lives.
Leaves furl expectantly from their sources
Meeting the chill of an inevitable winter.
Before the frost are days of the unexpected—
Sensations that resemble exaltation and depression.
Orientation to the long-awaited experience
That is to temper our thoughts, feelings, and actions.
For those who become involved it is a dynamic
Process—of give and take—and infinite meaning.
The dominant character of our new era is discovered.
The Medium to seek greater wisdom shrouded
In deep, secretive days that can never
Be held close enough again.
The sting of winter, a quiet, grey January, and with it
The classroom, the group related through thought
And experience. Study, some is required,
But only earnestly pursued by a few.
The inspiring principles that we hope will
Pervade even the roughest weather.
The gradual sense of membership,
The closeness of a time in-between—
In the gameroom—coffee—a chat—
The fervor of basketball season—another
Part of learning the "game."
It happens too fast to think and can
Never be replayed.
Then—no more time.
The visible joy of spring—the comfort of electric days and warm,
clinging nights.
The growing need to taste and touch
All of earth's progeny.
The passion for times lived and the
Laurel that fits any head.
The vernal span that provokes
An effortless energy and at times
A solemnity, an awareness, and a Realization.
Summer, like a senior year, comes too quickly, without transition, Bringing gratification and a last
Grasp for the illusive spirit of
An institution for higher learning.
The baccalaureate has been given
The graduation programs are swept away
Life here is not over. It only
Enters the new dimension of memory.
And another beginning.
Whatever we remember—however
Often we recall "the thing we did
In College"—these will all be united
Into one common denominator—
Oglethorpe.

The Oglethorpe Players, under the direction of Ed Danus, switched from the tragic to the comic farce in the plays they presented this year. The first quarter's production of the Greek tragedy "The Trojan Women" highlighted the dramatic abilities of the Players in the story of the aftermath of the fall of Troy.

Winter quarter they presented a series of three French plays. "The Painting" by Eugene Ionesco, "En Gggarrde" by Rene Daumal, and "The Wedding on the Eiffel Tower" by Jean Cocteau.

A Day in Autumn.

At first glance the campus seems deserted and quiet. But very slowly the stillness of the quadrangle is disturbed. A car comes up the thermometer. Soon two coeds, dressed in the latest campus styles, leave Lupton Hall.

Autumn days are filled with a flurry of activity—orientation, Rat Week, buying books, getting to know people, the hayride, weekend socials, and listening to introductory lectures . . .

But Then Fall Turns

into winter and with the holidays over a grayness sets in—class after class, lab after lab and term paper after term paper.

YET even these gray days are relieved by happier times—the excitement of a formal, the work on a play, the satisfaction that comes from grasping a difficult bit of knowledge,

... the companionship of a goof-off session in the dorm,

and finally it's home—or elsewhere—for spring holidays.

Spring Brings With It

brighter, lighter days: Days which are doubly tinged with excitement over the progress and plans going on all around us. But the days are long and there's still time for a leisurely cigarette smoked in pleased contemplation of a finished art project or time to sit down on the grass and try to untangle that kite string. There are still labs to be done and classes to get to on time, but the spring air seems to have breathed new life into all.

The Oglethorpe Players present one play or a series of plays each quarter. Members of the Players not only act, but work behind the scenes in all phases of the production. Work begins on a play at the beginning of each quarter or sometimes earlier with the selection of that quarter's production. Casting is the next step and after that all who are involved are increasingly busy up until the date of the presentation. Rehearsals grow in length and frequency while the stage managers slave away at producing a set. This year, under the direction of Ed Danus, the Players brought "The Trojan Women," a Greek tragedy, a series of three one-act French plays, and another series of two one-act plays by Molière to the Oglethorpe stage.

The group does volunteer work for the Democratic party and encourages the active participation of young citizens in politics.

It also serves the school in a larger sense through the contributions of its members to the Literary Magazine.

SOCCER on the Oglethorpe scene is now four years old. Although the soccer team did not turn in an impressive record this year, they were unmatched in team spirit and determination. All the boys worked long and hard under the watchful eye of Coach Carter. Even when the score was overwhelmingly in the opposition's favor, the Petrels refused to quit.

At the annual soccer banquet special awards were presented to the outstanding players. The recipients of these awards were the following: Joe Strenk, Most Improved During the Season; Ben Hargrove, Best Effort and Best Offense; Jack Grubb and Tim Marx, Best Defensive; and Roy Cowart, Appreciation Trophy.

The Intramural Games

were dominated by the ever-successful Drifters, as they took top place in football and basketball. Although the Drifters, ending a fabled six-year career at Oglethorpe, won the title of champs, they faced a determined group of opposition. Spirit ran high in all the intramurals as the teams sported uniforms bearing their team names—"the 68ers", "the Greenbacks", "the Deals", and "the Drifters."

In the tennis tournament Clark Raby captured Class A honors and Jerry "B.A." Hollister claimed the Class B title.

Tough Luck and Close Games characterized the '64-'65 basketball season for Oglethorpe's Stormy Petrels. This season's schedule was one of the toughest in the school's history, and O.U. basketball had its first losing season in current history. The Petrels played such strong teams at Chattanooga, Bellarmine, Northwestern State, Centenary, Murray and Georgia Southern.

The fans were promised a lot of fast action and they got it. The Petrels tried the fast break and only occasionally reverted to the "wheel"—a deliberate pattern of play. Injuries and illness plagued the team and more than ever before the freshmen were counted on. They were among the brightest spots of the season. The junior varsity team turned in a perfect record, not losing a single game. "We are two years away from a great team," said Coach Pinholster.

Tennis

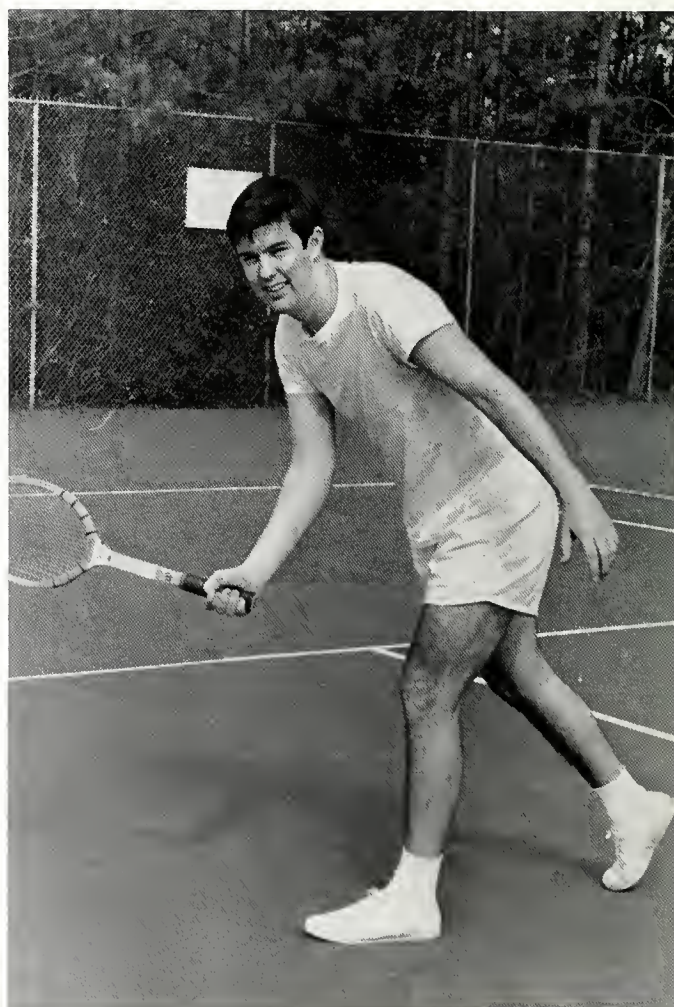

at Oglethorpe is more than just a sport, but is a pastime which a student may carry with him beyond his college years. Just as his education never leaves him, the Oglethorpe student who once learns the art of sending a ball at the right angle and at the right time across the net to score against an opponent never quite loses his skill. Tennis by its very nature teaches the rewards of maintaining good physical co-ordination, of perseverance, of the victory well earned or the loss well borne. Those who learn the game and play it know these rewards, and receive the benefits that come from knowing their value.

Clark Raby won the Intramural "Class A" championship.

Clark and Hank get in some practice.

Tennis demands the same amount of patience, endurance, skill and strength required of any participant in any major competitive sport. Although Oglethorpe did not have a tennis team this year, the courts were nearly always filled and a large number participated in the intramural tennis matches.

Jerry Hollister demonstrates the form that captured the Intramural "Class B" championship for him.

Experienced Players Spark

Baseball at Oglethorpe for 1965 gave promise of a better team than ever. Transfers, Jerry Brown and Jimmy Tumlin, along with fourth year regulars, Larry Abner, Ben Hargrove, Roy Cowart, and Bob Moreland formed the core of an experienced group of athletes.

The Petrels had on their schedule such schools as William Jewell, Valdosta State, Auburn, St. Bernard, Mercer, and Piedmont.

The beginning of the season saw the addition of Jimmy Tumlin and Dick Davis to the already experienced pitching staff of Roy Cowart and Ben Hargrove. The catching position has been a large problem for Coach Billy Carter for the last three years at Oglethorpe, but this year the catching ability of Larry Freeman, Roger Littel, and Tommy O'Conner made it easier for Coach Carter to concentrate on other problems.

Outfield returnees Bob Moreland, Larry Abner, and Charlie Stepp more than adequately filled the "big country" positions, but when help was needed, Aubrey Whitaker, Wayne Johnson, and Dick Davis were there for the tough job of backing up.

Baseball Season

Pitchers were Jimmy Tumlin, Roy Cowart, Ben Hargrove, and Dick Davis.

Outfielders were Dick Davis, Aubrey Whitaker, Bob Moreland, Wayne Johnson, Charlie Stepp, Roy Cowart, and Larry Abner.

Catchers were Larry Freeman and Tommy O'Conner.

THE INFIELD at the opening of the season appeared to be sound with two good first basemen vying for the starting position. With Tumlin or Bill Smith on first, second was held down by Larry Shattles, a returning letterman. Jerry Brown batted clean-up as well as playing shortstop. The rare combination appeared to be well suited for Jerry. Third base was shared by Ben Hargrove and Roy Cowart, with one playing it while the other was pitching. The two have alternated in this manner for the past three years in other similar positions.

Infield positions were played by Ben Hargrove, Bill Smith, Jimmy Tumlin, and Larry Shattles.

Petrels execute old one-two.

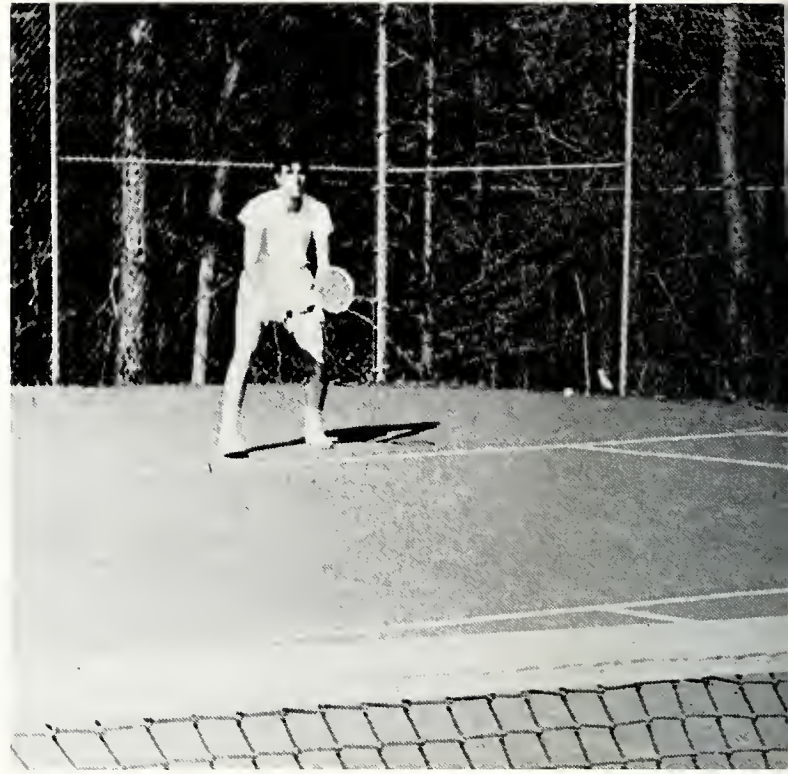

Heading into home!!

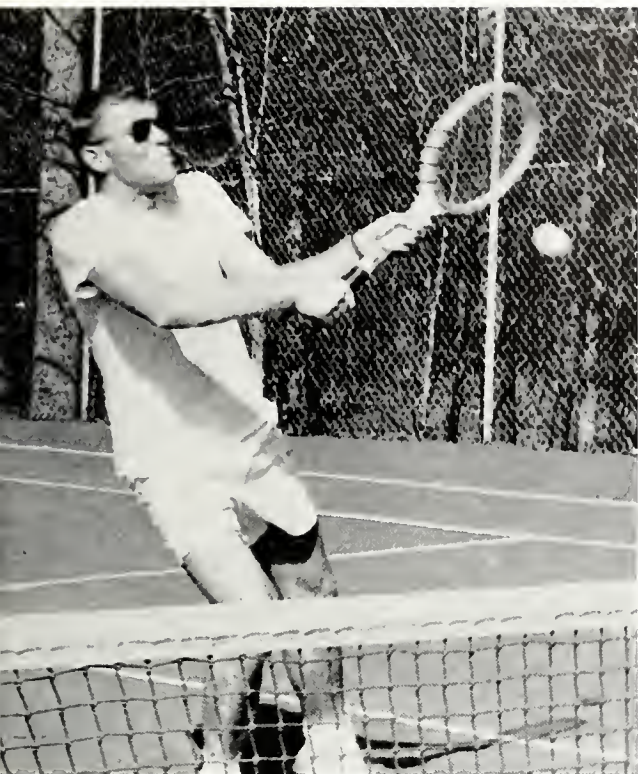

The Sportin' Life

is always "in" at Oglethorpe. Aside from the organized intercollegiate and intramural sports that most Oglethorpe students participate in, either as a player or as a spectator, life on campus is filled with fun and games. In the spring-time, especially, self-devised forms of entertainment are seen all over campus, from the frisbee game in front of Goodman to the embrace of the couple on the stairs in Phoebe Hearst. The tennis courts are filled from dawn to dusk and in the evenings after supper energetic groups of freshmen, soon joined by upperclassmen, happily play hopscotch or the "shoe game". Skateboarding takes some skill, but kite-flying takes nothing but a sunny, warm afternoon with a little bit of breeze—and a little bit of luck.

"See the bird?" "Where?" "There!" and they all fall down.

Tennis is always an old favorite—no matter just how you play the game. Kite-flying is a newer fad around campus and it's a real challenge to keep one of those trees from catching your kite.

"Shall I go for a ride down Burma Road now or wait till everyone else is in class??"

It might be nice to go for a little drive this evening . . .

. . . or maybe play the "shoe game"

Frisbee has been on the O.U. scene for a few years . . .

but hopscotch? Well, it looks . . .
